Dear Students, Faculty, Staff:

In recent days and weeks, we have witnessed communities across the country speaking out against the continued mistreatment of people based on their racial identity and events involving racial injustice including the tragic deaths of George Floyd, Ahmaud Arbery, Breonna Taylor and far too many others.

We stand with our students and our community in their anger and mourning. We share in their pain as we all try to process yet another avoidable and tragic loss.

The Office of Diversity and Inclusion is working with the president and other campus leaders in our response. In the coming weeks, we hope to create opportunities for members of our University community to come together and process, listen, learn and create change within our own campus community and beyond.

Diversity and inclusion are among University of Health Sciences and Pharmacy in St. Louis' core values, and we do not tolerate racism, prejudice, hatred or violence in any form.

We will continue to update this page with information and resources, and Isaac Butler, Pharm.D., MBA, chief diversity officer, is available at isaac.butler@uhsp.edu to assist with any questions or concerns.

Additional personal and academic resources continue to be available to students, faculty and staff.

Sincerely

Isaac Butler, Pharm.D., MBA
Vice President, Career Services and Education, and Chief Diversity Officer
