Student Athletes Perform Lifesaving First Aid

During their undergraduate years, P3 students Brent Adams, B.S. '21, Sean Harris, B.S. '21, and Edward Ngo, B.S. '21, became fast friends playing soccer together on the Eutectic Men's Soccer team. The three friends bonded over their passion for the game, drive to help others and desire to pursue pharmacy education.

When a player from an opposing team left a recreational game looking pale and became unresponsive, the quick-thinking pharmacy students provided the player with the lifesaving skills necessary to resuscitate him.

“Whether we’re playing soccer, working on a thirty-page patient case or performing CPR, being able to work collaboratively as a team has been critical to our success as individuals.”

— P3 student Brent Adams, B.S. '21

“I need the creative outlet that theater and music provide. I play the baritone saxophone in the Concert Band and Jazz Club, and I've been acting in plays since my first year. In my first year, these programs helped me connect with and learn from older students, and now it's a way for me to help orient first-year students and encourage them to get involved.”

— P2 Student Philip “Gavin” McRaven, B.S. '22
